To achieve the functionality, speed, and scalability that our space needs to progress, it is imperative that we embrace the enormous benefits of a multi-chain system and explore the possibilities of many protocols working together to cater to our industry's growing requirements. Nexo is partnering with Avalanche because it has not only built one of the fastest, most customizable DeFi ecosystems, but it is also developing a bridge to Ethereum thanks to its compatibility with the Solidity programming language, which will allow network participants to seamlessly connect and make transfers between the two chains.

With Nexo's new AVAX integration more and more users gain an efficient gateway to DeFi, giving them user-friendly exposure to Avalanche's system and native token. On a larger scale, Nexo's financial tools for AVAX provide liquidity for Avalanche's ecosystem that will ultimately increase developer engagement helping the network thrive.
